PREFACE.

THE object of this work is to provide those who have reason to consult the Parish Registers with an easy and reliable guide as to the accessibility or otherwise of these national records; and, although the introductory chapter, which treats of the subject from the historical aspect, may possess an interest for the general reader, the book is primarily designed to afford such practical information as is likely to be of service to the intending searcher.

In the performance of my task no available source of information has been unexplored, and it is hoped that the Annotated Index, which shows at a glance the date of the earliest entry in every Parish Register in England and Wales, and in which every transcript that has been printed is noted, will prove by its usefulness that my labours have not been in vain. I am only too conscious of the shortcomings of this publication, but can at least plead that I have honestly endeavoured, at a sacrifice of much time and labour, to compile a work which may be both of some historical interest and of some real value to the genealogist.

I have to express my grateful thanks to the Bishops and Clergy throughout the country for information on various points or for kind permission to inspect the ancient records in their custody. I am particularly indebted to Canon Hensley Henson, Rector of St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, who has not only granted me access to the historical registers of his parish, but has also allowed me to illustrate this volume with extracts from them.

I have only to add that I shall be much obliged to anyone who will point out my omissions, or correct my mistakes, and that it will give me much pleasure to afford any further information in my power to those who consult this work.

THE PARISH REGISTERS.

"Every parish must have a history, every parish has a register, every person has a parish."—Stubbs.

NUMEROUS causes, and none more than the Civil War and the usurpation of Oliver Cromwell, have combined to render incomplete the series of Parochial Registers; but still, despite their many deficiencies, they are invaluable to the family historian for the clues they afford; and it is much to be regretted that so little has been done by the Legislature to secure the safe custody of these national records, which, it should be pointed out to those unacquainted with the subject, remain to this day in the hands of the local clergy.

It may be readily admitted that many incumbents guard and cherish their Registers with loving care and scrupulous attention, and many of them, indeed, have been at the pains to restore them most admirably; but other Registers have not been so fortunate in their guardians. The documents are kept for the most part in the parish church, and may be daily liable, in spite of "sure coffers," to the cold and damp which the parishioners not infrequently experience and suffer from perhaps once a week. Moreover, they are exposed to the danger of fire, loss, or theft. In some cases they are preserved at the parsonage, where, besides liability to the risks above alluded to, it has unfortunately happened in many instances that they have been sold to the highest bidder at the death of the incumbent, and it was stated in evidence before a Select Committee of the House of Commons that a certain rector "used to direct his pheasants with the parchment of the old registers." Another clergyman, in Worcestershire, detected an individual, who had been given access to the Registers, "with his mouth full of parchment, nearly chewed to pieces." Many, indeed, have been the disasters that have befallen these precious and irreplaceable records. Even the bare recital of their vicissitudes, the story of hairbreadth escapes, partial rescues, or total destruction, is enough to turn the genealogist's hair white "in a single night," and to fill the antiquarian's soul with anguish.

Although the investigator of a pedigree will doubtless regard it of more importance to know where sources of information may be found and how to approach them than to busy himself needlessly as to why those particular sources should happen to be in existence, there may be some who would wish to extend their knowledge, and for such inquiring minds it is proposed to adumbrate as concisely as possible a short outline of the legal history of these Registers.

In 1535, by virtue of the Act of Supremacy, Henry the Eighth appointed Thomas, Lord Cromwell,* at that time Privy Seal, to

* Thomas, Baron Cromwell, afterwards Earl of Essex and Knight of the Garter, was the son of Walter Cromwell, alias Smyth, a blacksmith of Putney, Surrey. The date of his birth is doubtful, and little is known of his early life. Entering the service of Cardinal Wolsey in about 1518, he was eventually invested by Henry VIII. with most extensive powers in ecclesiastical affairs, and became a principal agent in the Reformation. Having held successively the offices of Chancellor of Exchequer, Master of the Rolls, Lord Privy Seal, Vicar-General, and Lord High Chamberlain of England, he ultimately fell into disfavour, and was beheaded on Tower Hill, 28th July 1540.

be his Vicar-General. Three years after his appointment Cromwell issued Injunctions* that a book and a coffer with two locks should be provided for each parish in England and Wales, and the parson of the parish was ordered to write every Sunday in the presence of the churchwardens, or one of them, and record in the book all the baptisms, marriages, and burials of the immediately preceding week. In case of neglect a fine of three shillings and fourpence was imposed, to be applied to the repair of the church. A.D. 1538.

From this year date the first original entries in Parish Registers, for, though some few isolated entries, purporting to belong to a prior period, are in existence, it is practically certain that all these will be found on examination to have been actually recorded after 1538.

It was natural enough, however, that this mandate of the avowed enemy of "Popery" and the instigator of innovations in religion, should have met with strong opposition, especially amongst the clergy, and that failure to comply with the order was of constant occurrence. Meetings of protest were held in various parts of the country, and the prevailing idea seems to have been that the real object in view was to levy a tax on all christenings, marriages, and burials.* The following letters addressed to Thomas Cromwell, in 1539, have been preserved amongst the State Papers, and are curious and interesting examples of the alarm that was felt at the time.

* Almost three centuries later the opposition to the first Act passed for a census of the population (41 Geo. III. c. 15, 1800) was based on the same grounds.

† Sir Piers Edgecomb (or Eggecomb) was the son of Sir Richard Edgecomb, by Joan, his wife, daughter of Thomas Tremayne, of Collacomb, co. Devon. He was one of the twenty Knights of the Bath created "on the eve of St. Andrew," 1489, and served as Sheriff of Devonshire in 1493. "For gallant behaviour," while taking part in the expedition against France in 1513, he was made a Knight Banneret. He married firstly, Jane, daughter and heiress of Stephen Durnford of East Stonehouse, co. Devon, and secondly, Catherine, daughter of Sir John St. John, and widow of Sir Griffith Ryce. He died 14th August 1539 and left issue by his first wife only.

Little change was made for the next sixty years. In 1547 (I Edward VI.) a similar Injunction directed that the fines should go to the poor-box of the parish, and in 1559 (1 Elizabeth) it was enjoined that the penalty should be divided equally, one half to the poor and the other half to the repair of the church.

In 1563 Parliament for the first time intervened, and a Bill was read in the House of Commons "to erect an office of registership of all the church books to be kept in every diocese," but the clergy, ever jealous of their privileges, interposed, and the Bill was dropped, while in 1590, the influence of the Archbishop of Canterbury* was

* John Whitgift, Archbishop of Canterbury, was born at Great Grimsby, Lincolnshire, in 1530. He was sent to Queen's College, Cambridge, in 1548, but soon after removed to Pembroke, where he sufficient to defeat a proposal of Lord Treasurer Burghley that there should be an annual summary of the registrations of all baptisms, marriages, and burials, in England and Wales, arranged according to counties.

The next change of any importance was made in 1597 (39 Elizabeth), when a constitution, issued by the Archbishop, bishops, and the clergy of the province of Canterbury, approved by the Queen, under the seal of Great Britain, directed the more careful preservation of parochial Registers (quorum permagnus usus est), and enjoined that a copy of the records should be sent annually within a month after Easter to the Register of each diocese without fee. Certain penalties were threatened against those who disobeyed the precept. A.D. 1597.

Those copies are known as "Bishops' Transcripts," but, owing to want of arrangement, they are very difficult and laborious to consult. Moreover, not only were the clergy lax in obeying the precept, but in many cases the diocesan authorities were careless to preserve them. In some dioceses, although subsequent ordinances have directed their punctual transmission, no attention whatever has been paid to the subject, and in no single diocese are they perfect.

Nevertheless, these transcripts are of immense value in the elucidation of a genealogy, providing, as they do, not infrequently copies of entries of which the originals are no longer in existence, and thus yielding information of an earlier date than the parish books afford. It should be borne in mind, however, that during the Civil War and at the time of the Commonwealth, when to some extent the registration had passed out of the hands of the clergy, the sequence is particularly imperfect, and that for some counties there appear to be no returns whatever.

A somewhat similar mandate to that of 1597 was issued in the first year of James the First's reign with the laudable object of A.D. 1603.

graduated in 1554, becoming Master of the Hall in 1567. In 1573 he was appointed Dean of Lincoln, and in 1576 Bishop of Worcester. On the death of Archbishop Grindall, in 1583, he was translated to the See of Canterbury. He died 29th February, 1604, and was interred in the parish church of Croydon, where a monument was erected to him.

securing greater accuracy as to the entries and more care in the preservation of the Registers themselves. It was directed that :—

"In every Parish Church and Chapel within this Realm
" shall be provided one Parchment Book at the charge of " the Parish, wherein shall be written the day and year of " every Christening, Wedding, and Burial which have been
" in that Parish since the time that the Law was first made
" in that behalf, so far as the ancient Books thereof can " be procured, but especially since the beginning of the " Reign of the late Queen. And for the safe keeping of the " said Book the Churchwardens at the charge of the Parish
" shall provide one sure Coffer with three Locks and Keys
" whereof the one to remain with the Minister and the other
" two with the Churchwardens severally so that neither the " Minister without the two Churchwardens, nor the Church-
" wardens without the Minister shall at any time take that " Book out of the said Coffer. And henceforth upon every
" Sabbath Day immediately after Morning or Evening
" Prayer the Minister and Churchwardens shall take the " said Parchment Book out of the said Coffer, and the " Minister in the presence of the Churchwardens shall write
" and record in the said Book the names of all persons
" christened together with the names and surnames of their " parents, and also the names of all Persons married and
" buried in that Parish, in the week before, and the day
" and year of every such Christening, Marriage and Burial.
" And that done they shall lay up that Book in the Coffer
" as before ; and the Minister and Churchwardens unto every
" page of that Book when it shall be filled with such inscrip-
" tions shall subscribe their names. And the Churchwardens
" shall once every year within one month after the five and " twentieth day of March, transmit unto the Bishop of the " Diocese or his Chancellor a true copy of the names of all " persons Christened, Married or Buried in the Parish in
" the year before (ended the said five and twentieth day of " March) and the certain days and months in which such
" Christening, Marriage and Burial was had, to be subscribed
" with the hands of the said Minister and Churchwardens
" to the end the same may faithfully be preserved in the

"Registry of the said Bishop, which certificate shall be "received without fee. And if the Minister and Church-"wardens shall be negligent in performance of anything "herein contained it shall be lawful for the Bishop or his "Chancellor to convent them and proceed against every of "them as Contemnors of this our Constitution."

But in spite of these regulations it was found necessary during the Commonwealth to issue further ones. By an Act of 1653, "How Marriages shall be Solemnized and Registered, as also a Register for Births and Burials," the registration duties were taken out of the hands of the clergy, births (not baptisms) were required to be registered, and Marriage was to be treated as a civil contract. "An able and honest person, to be called The Parish Register," was to be elected triennially by the inhabitants of each parish, and a fee of 12d. was to be paid for each entry of marriage, and 4d. for every birth or death. But, admirable as these provisions were, at the Restoration the registration reverted to the clergy.* A.D. 1653.

Although it has but an indirect connection with the history of Parish Registers, it may not perhaps be uninteresting to recall at this point the curious Act for burial in woollen.† This was ordained "for the encouragement of the woollen manufacturers, and pre-"venting of the exportation of money for the importing of linen," and thereby "no corpse shall be buried but in woollen after the "first of August, and not in any shirt, sheet, shift, or shroud, or "anything whatsoever made or mingled with flax, hemp, hair, gold, "or silver, or any stuff or thing other than what is made of sheep's "wool only, under a penalty of £5."

An affidavit was required within eight days of burial that the corpse had been duly clad according to law, and the Act was to be read in church on the first Sunday after St. Bartholomew's Day every year for seven years after the passing of the Act.

Many references are made in entries of burials to this whimsical piece of legislation. Interference with the liberty of the subject, even when dead, is always resented, and this post-mortem Sumptuary Law was very unpopular, and had become a dead letter long before its repeal in 1814.

In the reign of William the Third several Registration Acts were passed, but these, like the one we have just noticed, had more the object of increasing the State revenue than of obtaining proper entries and the better preservation of the records.

A.D. 1694. Thus it was enacted (6 & 7 William III., cap. 6) that the penalty of £100 was to be exacted from clergy who neglected to register marriages, burials, births, or baptisms; and in the following year (7 & 8 William III., cap. 35) a fine of forty shillings was imposed on parents who should have omitted to give notice within five days of the birth of a child, and the vicar was enjoined under a like penalty "to take an exact and true account of, and keep a distinct register of, such so born and not christened," for doing which the parents were to pay sixpence to the vicar.

As an example of its fiscal purpose it may be mentioned that this Act also "granted his Majesty certain rates and duties upon " bachelors and widowers for the term of five years, for carrying " on the war against France with vigour." Ordinary persons, being over twenty-five years of age and bachelors, or widowers of any age, were liable to the fine of one shilling yearly, while a duke or marquess, being celibate or widowed, were mulcted in the sums of £12 10s. or £10 respectively.

A.D. 1753. "An Act for the preventing of Clandestine Marriages" (known generally as Lord Hardwicke's* Act—26 Geo. II. cap. 33), passed in 1753, prescribed a special form of entry for banns and marriages, somewhat similar to that now in use. It directed all marriages to be by license or banns and to be solemnized in some church or

* Sir Philip Yorke, first Earl of Hardwicke, was born 1st December 1690; called to the bar 6th May 1715; and appointed Solicitor General and knighted, 22nd March 1720. On the 31st January 1724 he succeeded to the office of Attorney-General, and thus within nine years after his call to the bar, and before he had attained the age of thirty-four years he had become leader in Westminster Hall. Upon the death of Lord Raymond, in 1733, he was appointed Lord Chief Justice of England, and raised to the peerage as Baron Hardwicke of Hardwicke, County Gloucester, in the same year. He was constituted Lord Chancellor of England 21st February 1737, and advanced, the 2nd April 1754, to a viscountcy and earldom by the titles of Viscount Royston and Earl of Hardwicke. His lordship was appointed, in 1746 chapel where banns had been theretofore usually published, and consequently a stop was put to marriages being performed in the chapels in and about London, as at these chapels it had not been usual to publish banns, and it was even found that St. Paul's Cathedral and Westminster Abbey were included in the prohibition, as banns had never been published in them.

Lord Hardwicke's Act had for its principal object the suppression of the Fleet and May Fair Chapel marriages.* The former were performed without license or certificate of banns, by regularly ordained clergymen, residing within the Fleet Prison or its rules, and usually confined for debt. A score or more couples were joined in one day and if they chose to pay an extra fee their names were concealed by private marks. That the measure was a timely one may be evidenced by the following letter which appeared on 27th February 1734–5 in The Grub Street Journal :—

Lord High Steward of England for the trials of the Earls of Kilmarnock and Cromartie and the Lords Balmerino and Lovat. By his marriage with Margaret, daughter of Charles Cocks, M.P. for the city of Worcester, he had five sons and two daughters. His second son, Charles, the eminent lawyer, held the office of Lord High Chancellor of England, and died suddenly 22nd January 1770, at the moment when the patent conferring the title of Baron Morden upon him was in progress of completion.

" married, even on a Sunday stopping them as they go to " church, and almost tearing their cloaths off their backs.
" To confirm the truth of these facts, I will give you a case
" or two which lately happened.

" Since midsummer last, a young lady of birth and fortune
" was deluded and forced from her friends, and by the assist" ance of a wry-necked swearing parson, married to an
" atheistical wretch, whose life is a continual practice of all " manner of vice and debauchery. And since the ruin of my
" relation, another lady of my acquaintance had like to have " been trepanned in the following manner. This lady had " appointed to meet a gentlewoman at the Old Play-house in
" Drury Lane, but extraordinary business prevented her coming.
" Being alone when the play was done, she bade a boy call a " coach for the city. One drest like a gentleman helps her
" into it, and jumps in after her. 'Madam,' says he, 'this
" 'coach was called for me; and since the weather is so bad,
" 'and there is no other, I beg leave to bear you company; I " 'am going into the city, and will set you down wherever you
" 'please.' The lady begged to be excused; but he bade the " coachman drive on. Being come to Ludgate-hill, he told " her his sister who waited for his coming, but five doors up
" the court, would go with her in two minutes. He went,
" and returned with his pretended sister, who asked her to
" step in one minute and she would wait upon her in the " coach. Deluded with the assurance of having his sister's " company, the poor lady foolishly followed her into the " house; when instantly the sister vanished, and a tawny
" fellow in a black coat, and a black wig, appeared. 'Madam,
" you are come in good time, the doctor was just a-going.'
" 'The doctor,' says she, horridly frighted, fearing it was a
" madhouse. 'What has the doctor to do with me?' 'To " 'marry you to that gentleman; the doctor has waited for " 'you these three hours, and will be payed by you or by
" 'that gentleman before you go.' 'That gentleman,' says she,
" recovering herself, 'is worthy a better fortune than mine,'
" and begged hard to be gone. But Doctor Wryneck swore
" she should be married, or if she would not, he would still " have his fee, and register the marriage from that night. The " lady, finding she could not escape without money or a

" pledge, told them she liked the gentleman so well, she would " certainly meet him to-morrow night, and gave them a ring as " a pledge; 'which,' says she, 'was my mother's gift on her
" 'death-bed, injoining, that if ever I married, it should be my " 'wedding ring.' By which cunning contrivance she was " delivered from the black doctor, and his tawny crew. Some " time after this, I went with this lady and her brother in a
" coach to Ludgate-hill, in the day-time, to see the manner
" of their picking-up people to be married. As soon as our
" coach stops near Fleet-bridge, up comes one of the myr-
" midons. 'Madam,' says he, 'you want a parson.' 'Who " are you?' says I. 'I am the clerk and register of the Fleet.'
" 'Show me the chapel.' At which comes a second, desiring
" me to go along with him. Says he, 'That fellow will carry
" you to a pedling ale-house.' Says a third, 'Go with me, he " will carry you to a brandy-shop.' In the interim comes
" the doctor: 'Madam,' says he, 'I will do your jobb for you
" presently.' 'Well, gentlemen,' says I, 'since you can't agree,
" 'and I can't be married quietly, I'll put it off till another
" 'time,' so drove away. Learned Sirs, I wrote this in regard " to the honour and safety of my own sex; and if, for our " sakes, you will be so good as to publish it, correcting the " errors of a woman's pen, you will oblige our whole sex,
" and none more than,

" Sir,

" your constant reader and admirer,

Jan. 15, 1734. " VIRTUOUS."

The marriages at May Fair Chapel* were almost as notorious as those of the Fleet, and as many as 6,000 are said to have been solemnized in one year. The registers,† consisting of nine volumes, are now at the General Register Office, Somerset House.‡

---

* On the site of this famous chapel in Curzon Street now stands the recently erected Sunderland House.

† These have been printed by the Harleian Society, Vol. 15, Register section.

‡ The three folio volumes relating to May Fair Chapel, preserved with the parish books of St. George's, Hanover Square, are apparently transcripts.

A.D. 1783. In 1783 a stamp duty of threepence was imposed* (23 Geo. III. c. 67) on each entry of births or baptisms, marriages, and burials, and later (25 Geo. III. c. 75) this Act was extended to Dissenters, but was repealed within ten years.

A.D. 1812. Rose's† Act, "An Act for the better regulating and preserving "Parish and other Registers of Births, Baptisms, Marriages, and "Burials in England" (52 Geo. III. c. 146), was an endeavour, but a curiously slipshod and careless one, to improve the existing state of things. In spite of its title, for instance, it omits provision for registration of births, and it has no power of enforcing any of its enactments, except that respecting forgery. The only penalty imposed is that of transportation for fourteen years; and by a subsequent clause it is enacted that one-half of all penalties shall go to the informer, and the remainder to the poor of the parish, or to charitable purposes! Even the most relentless and malicious of informers was hardly likely to demand his share in the delights of Botany Bay.

Its chief provisions were:—

(1) After the 31st December 1812, registers of public and private baptisms, marriages, and burials were to be made and kept by the rector, &c., in books provided by the King's

* On the 26th May 1783, Lord John Cavendish, in moving on behalf of the Government "that towards raising the supply granted "to His Majesty, a stamp duty of threepence be charged upon the "entry of any burial, marriage, birth or christening, in any parish "register in Great Britain," observed that "he proposed a register "of births, marriages, and deaths, and the amount of this regulation "he stated at the sum of fifteen thousand pounds" (Annual Register, 1783). The proposal was vehemently condemned by Pitt and others in the House, and the imposition of the tax met with strong opposition in the country.

† The Right Hon. George Rose (1744–1818) was educated at Westminster School. After serving in the Navy for some years, he was appointed, in 1762, Clerk in the Register Office of the Exchequer. In 1777 he became Secretary to the Board of Taxes, and served as Secretary to the Treasury during Shelburne's ministry, 1782-3, and again during Pitt's ministry, 1784–1801. He was elected M.P. for Launceston, 1784; appointed for life Master of the Pleas in the Court of the Exchequer; elected M.P. for Lymington, 1788, and for Christchurch, 1790; made a Privy Councillor, 1802; served as Vice-President of the Board of Trade and joint Paymaster-General during Pitt's second administration, 1804–6; Vice-President of the Board of Trade and Treasurer of the Navy, 1807–12; Deputy Warden of the New Forest, 1808; and subsequently again Treasurer of the Navy.

printer at the expense of respective parishes, according to the forms contained in certain annexed schedules.

(2) Registers of baptisms, marriages, and burials to be made in separate books.

(3) The rector, etc., as soon as possible after the solemnization of the rite, to enter in the proper Register Book the several particulars described in the schedules and to sign the same; and in no case (unless prevented by sickness or other unavoidable impediment) later than within seven days after the ceremony.

(4) The Register Books to be kept in a dry, well-painted iron chest, in some dry, safe and secure place within the usual residence of such rector, etc. (if resident within the parish), or in the parish church.

(5) Within two months after the end of every year, fair copies of all the entries of the preceding year to be made by the rector, etc., on parchment, verified and signed by him and to be sent before the 1st June in each year to the registrar of the diocese.

(6) The registrars to cause such copies to be securely deposited and preserved from damage by fire or otherwise, and to be carefully arranged with correct alphabetical lists of all persons and places mentioned.

(7) Any persons making any false entry in any Register, or altering, defacing, or injuring any such Register Book, Transcript, or List, to be liable to transportation for fourteen years.

(8) The rector, etc., of every parish, before the 1st of June, 1813, to transmit to the registrar of the diocese a list of all Registers then in the parish, stating the periods at which they respectively began and ended, the periods (if any) for which they were deficient, and the places where they were deposited.

This Act with all its defects remained in force and unamended for upwards of twenty-five years. During that time the whole system of parish registration depended on it, two attempts to amend it (in 1824 and 1830 respectively) failing to get beyond the first reading in the House of Commons.

The matter was, however, at length definitely grappled with in 1833, and a Select Committee was appointed to consider and report on Parochial Registers in England and Wales and on a General Registration of Births, Baptisms, Marriages, Deaths and Burials. The Report of the Committee was printed and issued in the same year, and, as a consequence of their labours, an Act (6 & 7 William IV. c. 86—later amended and explained by an Act of 1837) was passed "for Registering Births, Deaths, and Marriages in England," and establishing a civil registration. It repealed so much of the Acts of 1812 and 1823 as related to the registration of marriages, and provided a Registrar-General, Superintendent Registrars, etc., for registering births, deaths, and marriages. Register books in duplicate to be furnished to every church and chapel where marriages may be solemnized. Section 35 provides that rectors, &c., are to allow searches in any register book after certain fees have been paid, but no provision (and this omission is certainly much to be regretted) was made by the legislators for the safe custody of the Parish Registers then in existence. No one can deny that it is imperative that the strictest of stringent regulations should be made for this purpose.

A.D. 1836.
A.D. 1837.

Since the 1st of July 1837 all births, marriages, and deaths in England and Wales are to be found in perfectly indexed volumes at Somerset House. As all may have access to these records, and procure copies, obtainable for a small fee, it becomes unnecessary to trace the history of Parish Registers beyond this date. But there is still work for the Legislature to do. It is time that the ancient Registers were collected under one central roof where they could be properly arranged, carefully indexed, and securely guarded. This, besides safeguarding what has been called "the title deeds of the middle classes," would greatly facilitate the work of searching them.

Lord Romilly,* who as Master of the Rolls rendered the public records—political, domestic and legal—accessible to all, had doubtless

* The Right Honourable Sir John Romilly, first Baron Romilly, was the second surviving son of the eminent jurisconsult and statesman Sir Samuel Romilly, by Anne, his wife, daughter of Francis Garbett of Knill Court, co. Hereford. He was born in 1802; called to the bar in 1827; and appointed Solicitor-General in March 1848, receiving in view some Parliamentary measure dealing with the subject of the parochial records when, on the 19th March 1872, he moved in the House of Lords, "That an humble Address be presented to " Her Majesty, to request that Her Majesty will be graciously " pleased to order that there be laid before this House, Return " from the Rector, Vicar, Curate, Officiating Minister, or Incumbent " in charge of each Parish, Chapelry, or Ecclesiastical District in " England and Wales, of all Registers, Records, Books, Documents " or other Instruments relating to Baptisms, Marriages, and Burials, " in their possession on 31st December 1871, stating their nature, " the dates from which and to which they extend, their state and " condition, and how and where they are preserved:

"Also, a Return from each of the same Persons, to the 31st " December 1871, whether the Parchment Copies of Baptisms, " Marriages or Burials required by the Act 52 Geo. III. cap. 146, " have been annually sent to the Diocesan Registrars, the number " of times when such Copies have not been sent, and the reasons " for not sending them."

Although "the same was agreed to," no further reference to this Motion can be found in the records of the House of Lords, and it is probable that the matter lapsed, so far as the House was concerned, through the neglect of some official, and that it escaped the notice of Lord Romilly and the other Lords. This seems to be the only possible explanation, as there is no doubt that there should have been both a formal reply as well as a return.*

Ten years later, a Bill was read in the House of Commons to make provision for the better preservation of the ancient Parochial Registers of England and Wales, but the proposed measure unforat the same time the honour of knighthood. In July 1850 he became Attorney-General, from which office, in eight months he was raised to that of Master of the Rolls, to which he was appointed 28th March 1851. On the 19th December 1865 he was raised to the Peerage as Baron Romilly of Barry, co. Glamorgan. He married, in 1833, Caroline, daughter of the Right Reverend William Otter, D.D., Bishop of Chichester, by whom he had issue. His death took place 22nd December 1874.

tunately never reached a second reading and was withdrawn on 5th July 1882.

A certain number of Parish Registers have already been printed and published, and it could be wished that this process should be made obligatory and applied to the remainder, the necessary work to be undertaken by experts* and carried out at the cost of the State and under its supervision.

In treating the subject of Parish Registers from the historical aspect it may not be out of place to mention that until 1752 the civil year began on Lady Day (March 25) and ended on the eve of the following Lady Lady. In 1751 an Act † was passed whereby the legal year was to be reckoned in 1752 and onwards from the 1st of January; and this explains what often looks like the discrepancy of a whole year's difference in date.

It may also be pointed out that in very few of the old Register books were the entries made at the time of the performance of the ceremonies to which they refer; they were generally transcripts‡ made in pursuance of the Injunction of 1597 or that of 1603, and compiled not unlikely from the memoranda made in the private journals or diaries of the parochial clergy, as many of these early records contain references to the appointment of churchwardens and overseers, notices as to titles, moduses, and so forth.

The following extracts, from the well-preserved and deeply interesting Register books of St. Margaret's Church, Westminster,§ which commence in 1538 and are almost complete from that date, will serve to illustrate in what manner the baptisms, marriages, and burials were registered at the different periods, and also to show

* A special knowledge is necessary to decipher accurately the early entries, and the extracts of unqualified searchers are seldom to be relied upon. Indeed, some of the printed registers are not above suspicion in this respect, and reference to the original is often most advisable.

† 25 Geo. II. c. 30.

‡ Whether this is so or not may be generally discovered by the title of the book or by the similarity of the handwriting up to the year 1598, or thereabouts, and by the signatures at the bottom of each page.

§ In the Churchwardens' accounts of 1538, for this parish, is the following entry:—"Paid for a Book to registre in the names of buryals, weddings, and Christenings, 2d."

* The poet was appointed Latin Secretary to the Council of State, and was retained in the same capacity by Cromwell when he assumed the Protectorate.

† Daughter of a Captain Woodcock of Hackney, and the second wife of Milton, by whom she has been immortalized in his beautiful sonnet: "Methought I saw my late espousèd saint." The entry, however, proves the generally accepted tradition that Katherine Milton died in giving birth to a child to be without foundation. It will be observed that in point of fact her death did not take place until almost four months after her confinement.

[13] The Parliamentary Return, printed in 1833, states that "there are two register books of earlier date (supposed to commence in 1483) which were taken away by the Archdeacon in 1824"; but neither the Rector of Althorpe nor the Diocesan authorities appear to know anything of the books referred to. The date at which they are supposed to begin is obviously erroneous, and the Transcripts, for this parish, preserved at Lincoln, do not commence until about 1660.
